CLASS AND COLLECTIVE ACTION
COMPLAINT

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

----- X

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. Plaintiffs Antonio Cruz, Angel Arroyo, and Reynaldo Munoz allege on behalf of themselves and other similarly situated current and former employees of Defendant Plaza Motors of Brooklyn Inc. ("Plaza Motors") and those who elect to opt into this action under the Fair Labor Standards Act ("FLSA"), 29 U.S.C. § 216(b), that they are entitled to (i) unpaid wages from Plaza Motors for overtime work for which they did not receive overtime premium pay, (ii) compensation for off-the clock work, and (iii) liquidated damages under the FLSA, 29 U.S.C. §§201 et seq.

2. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz further complain on behalf of themselves, and a class of other similarly situated current and former employees of Plaza Motors, pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23, that they are entitled to (i) back wages from Plaza Motors for overtime work for which they did not receive overtime premium pay, as required by the New York Labor Law, (ii) compensation for off-the-clock work, (iii) statutory penalties for Plaza Motors failing to provide its employees the Notice and Acknowledgment of Pay rate and Payday as required under N.Y. Lab. Law § 195.1(a) within ten business days of their hire date (“195.1 Notice”), and (iv) liquidated damages under the Labor Law, as amended by the Wage Theft Prevention Act.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

3. In addition, the Court has jurisdiction over Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz’s FLSA claims under 29 U.S.C. § 216(b).

4. Venue is proper in this district under 28 U.S.C. §1391(b).

5. This Court is empowered to issue a declaratory judgment under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202.

THE PARTIES

6. Plaintiff Cruz was, at all relevant times, an adult individual, residing in Brooklyn, New York, Kings County.

7. Plaintiff Arroyo was, at all relevant times, an adult individual, residing in Brooklyn, New York, Kings County.

8. Plaintiff Munoz was, at all relevant times, an adult individual, residing in Brooklyn, New York, Kings County.

9. Upon information and belief, Defendant Plaza Motors is a domestic corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, which is licensed to do business in the State of New York with a principal place of business at 2740 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, New York 11210.

10. Upon information and belief, Plaza Motors is an enterprise engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce. Plaza Motors is engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce, because, inter alia, it has employees that handle goods and materials that have been produced for and moved in commerce, and, upon information and belief, its annual gross volume of business is at least $500,000.00. These goods and materials that have been produced for and moved in commerce, which its employees have handled, include, but are not limited to, computers and automobile parts.

11. Plaza Motors has, directly or indirectly, hired and fired Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz and other employees, supervised and controlled Plaintiffs' work schedule and employment conditions, determined their payment rate and method, and kept at least some records regarding their employment.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

12. At all relevant times, upon information and belief, Plaza Motors is an automobile dealership that sells Acura, Honda, Hyundai, Kia, Scion and Toyota-manufactured cars and auto parts.

13. Plaza Motors employed Plaintiff Cruz as a parts counterperson at the Honda and Hyundai dealerships from September 17, 2013 to May 12, 2016.

14. Plaza Motors employed Plaintiff Arroyo as a parts counterperson at the Honda and Hyundai dealerships from February 27, 2013 to May 2, 2016.

15. Plaza Motors employed Plaintiff Munoz as a parts counterperson at the Honda and Hyundai dealerships from, in or about, July 2014 to July 15, 2016 when he was promoted to manager.

16. As a parts counterperson, the primary duties of Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 Class (as defined below) and Collective Action Members (as defined below) included ordering and selling automobile parts to customers, and organizing the inventory.

17. Throughout the time Plaza Motors employed Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, both before that time and continuing until today (the Class and Collective Action Period), Plaza Motors has likewise employed other individuals like Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz (the Rule 23 Class and Collective Action Members) in positions that required little skill and no capital investment, and their duties and responsibilities did not include any managerial responsibilities, or the exercise of independent judgment.

18. Parts counterpersons report to the Parts Manager who reports to the Parts Service Director.

19. At any one time, 6 parts counterpersons are working at each Plaza Motors dealerships.

20. A moderate turnover rate exists with the parts countermen: some voluntarily terminate their employment while Plaza Motors terminates others' employment.

21. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members were scheduled to work a minimum of 5 days per week that were at least 9 hours long.

22. Plaintiff Cruz's regular work schedule was from 7:30 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. five days per week and was provided with at most a twenty-minute lunch, equaling 47.0 hours (9.4 hours x 5 days) of work.

23. Plaintiff Arroyo's regular work schedule was from 10:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. five days per week and was infrequently provided with an uninterrupted lunch break, resulting in him regularly working 45 hours each week (9.0 hours x 5 days).

24. Plaintiff Munoz's regular work schedule was from 7:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday with at most a twenty-minute lunch, equaling 43.3 hours (8.6 hours x 5 days) of work.

25. In addition to their regular schedule, Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members would also sometimes be scheduled to work an extra shift, usually over the weekend.

26. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members clocked in and out using a biometric hand scanner.

27. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members regularly worked more than 40 hours per week.

28. Plaintiff Cruz, for example, worked 44.2 hours during the week of March 8, 2015 and 46.7 hours the week of June 14, 2015.

29. Regardless of whether they took a lunch break, Plaza Motors automatically deducted a one-hour lunch break from Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members' time records.

30. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members regularly did not work an uninterrupted one hour lunch break; their lunch breaks were regularly interrupted; and they remained on duty while eating their lunch.

31. Through implementing its policies and observing them, Plaza Motors knew that Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 Class and Collective Action Members were working through lunch and permitted them to do so.

32. The time Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members worked through lunch is compensable.

33. Plaza Motors paid Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 Class and Collective Action Members the same hourly rate for all hours worked – regardless if they worked more than 40 hours in a week.

34. Plaintiff Cruz's hourly rate gradually increased from $13.50 to $15.50.

35. Plaintiff Arroyo's hourly rate was $12.50 throughout his employment.

36. Plaintiff Munoz's hourly rate was $13.50 throughout his employment as a parts counterperson.

37. Plaza Motors did not pay Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 Class and Collective Action Members one and one-half times (1.5) their regular hourly rate for any hour they worked above forty in a week ("overtime pay").

38. Plaza Motors treated Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 and Collective Action Members as non-exempt employees by requiring them to sign in and out, deducting a one-hour lunch break, deducting their pay if they left early or if they took a day off.

39. Plaza Motors paid Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 Class and Collective Action Members commission on their sales, which equaled at most 25% of their total earnings for that pay period.

40. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz and, upon information and belief, the Rule 23 Class and Collective Action Members' commissions did not equal 50% or more of their total earnings in any pay period.

41. Regardless of what location they worked at, the Plaintiffs were paid under the same policies and by the same corporate entity: Plaza Motors of Brooklyn Inc.

42. Plaza Motors never provided Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz with the 195.1 Notice.

43. From speaking with other Rule 23 Class and Collective Action Members at their dealerships and at the Acura and Toyota dealerships, Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz know that they, like them, regularly worked more than 40 hours in week; their commissions did not equal or exceed 50% of their total earnings in any pay period paid; Plaza Motors paid them their regular hourly rate for every hour they worked – even when they worked more than 40 hours in a week; Plaza Motors automatically deducted one hour from their hours for lunch; they regularly had their lunch break interrupted and remained on duty while eating lunch; Plaza Motors did not compensate them for their interrupted lunch break; and Plaza Motors did not provide them with the 195.1 Notice.

COLLECTIVE ACTION ALLEGATIONS

44. Under 29 U.S.C. §207, Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz seek to prosecute their FLSA claims as a collective action on behalf of all persons Plaza Motors employed and is employing as a parts counterperson at any time since November 7, 2013 to the entry of judgment in this case (the “Collective Action Period”), who were non-exempt employees within the meaning of the FLSA, who were not paid overtime compensation for hours worked in excess of forty (40) per workweek, and who were not compensated for all hours worked (the “Collective Action Members”).

45. This collective action class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Although the precise number of such persons is unknown, and the facts on which the calculation of that number are presently within the sole control of Plaza Motors, upon information and belief, approximately twenty (20) Collective Action Members exist during the Collective Action Period, most of whom would not be likely to file individual suits because they lack adequate financial resources, access to attorneys or knowledge of their claims.

46. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Collective Action Members are similarly situated on the following legal and fact issues:

- a. They performed similar duties;
- b. Plaza Motors employed them within the meaning of the FLSA;
- c. Plaza Motors failed to pay the Collective Action Members overtime compensation for hours worked in excess of forty (40) hours per workweek, violating the FLSA and the regulations promulgated thereunder;
- d. Plaza Motors failed to compensate the Collective Action Members for all hours worked in excess of forty hours by automatically deducting an hour for lunch when they did not work an uninterrupted hour lunch break;
- e. Plaza Motors misclassified the Collective Action Members as exempt from overtime;

f. Plaza Motors' violations of the FLSA are willful as that term is used within the context of the FLSA;

g. Plaza Motors is liable for all damages claimed hereunder, including but not limited to compensatory, liquidated damages, interest, costs and disbursements and attorneys' fees; and

h. Plaza Motors should be enjoined from such violations of the FLSA in the future.

CLASS ALLEGATIONS

47. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz sue on their own and on behalf of a class of persons under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a), (b)(2) and (b)(3).

48. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz bring their Labor Law claims on behalf of all persons whom Plaza Motors is employing and has employed as a parts counterperson at any time since November 7, 2010, to the entry of judgment in this case (the "Class Period"), who were non-exempt employees within the meaning of the Labor Law, who were not paid overtime compensation of one and one-half (1.5) times their regular rate of pay for hours worked in excess of forty (40) per workweek and who were not compensated for all hours worked (the "Rule 23 Class Members").

49. The Rule 23 Class Members identified above are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Although the precise number of such persons is unknown, and the facts to calculate that exact number are presently within the sole control of the Plaza Motors, upon information and belief, approximately forty (40) Rule 23 Class Members exist during the Class Period.

50. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz's claims are typical of the claims of the Rule 23 Class, and a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, particularly in the context of wage and hour litigation where individual plaintiffs lack the financial resources to vigorously prosecute a lawsuit in federal court against a corporate defendant.

51. Plaza Motors has acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the Rule 23 Class, thereby making appropriate final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief with respect to the class as a whole.

52. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz bring their Labor Law claim for failure to provide the 195.1 Notice on behalf of all persons whom Plaza Motors has hired at any time from April 9, 2011 to the entry of judgment in this case (the "Sub-Class Period") who did not receive the required Notice and Acknowledgment of Pay rate and Payday under Labor Law § 195.1(a) within ten (10) business days of the first date of their employment (the "Rule 23 Sub-Class Members").

53. The Rule 23 Sub-Class Members identified above are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Although the precise number of such persons is unknown, and the facts to calculate that number are presently within the sole control of the Plaza Motors, upon information and belief, approximately fifty (50) Rule 23 Sub-Class Members exist during the Sub-Class Period.

54. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz's claims are typical of the Rule 23 Sub-Class', and a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, particularly in the context of wage and hour litigation where individual plaintiffs lack the financial resources to vigorously prosecute a lawsuit in federal court against a corporate defendant.

55. Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo and Munoz are committed to pursuing this action and have retained competent counsel experienced in employment law, wage and hour law, and class action litigation.

56. Common questions of law and fact exist as to the Rule 23 Class and Sub-Class that predominate over any questions solely affecting the individual Rule 23 Class and Sub-Class Members, including but not limited to:

- a. Whether Plaza Motors employed Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 Class and Sub-Class Members within the meaning of the Labor Law;
- b. Whether Plaza Motors failed to keep true and accurate time records for all hours Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 Class Members worked;
- c. Whether Plaza Motors misclassified Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 Class Members as exempt from overtime;
- d. What proof of hours worked is sufficient where employers fail in their duty to maintain time records;
- e. Whether Plaza Motors failed and/or refused to pay Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 Class Members premium pay for hours worked in excess of forty (40) hours per workweek within the meaning of the Labor Law;
- f. Whether Plaza Motors failed and/or refused to compensate Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 Class Members for all compensable hours worked;

g. Whether Plaza Motors failed to provide Plaintiffs Cruz, Arroyo, Munoz and the Rule 23 Sub-Class Members the required Notice under Labor Law § 195.1(a);

h. Whether Plaza Motors is liable for all damages claimed hereunder, including but not limited to, statutory penalties, interest, costs and disbursements and attorneys' fees; and

i. Whether the Plaza Motors should be enjoined from such violations of the Labor Law in the future.
